OF CONGRESS

EIGHTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE DIRECTORS.

BARNARD MEMORIAL BUILDING,
BOSTON, June 3, 1902.

To the Members of the Corporation:

When our association was incorporated in 1894, the material that a few of its members had collected in relation to their direct line of Ancestry, and abstracts of Probate and land records from the registers of Suffolk, Middlesex and Essex counties made by your president, formed practically all the genealogical information at our command. The response of those of the name, or connected with it by marriage, to our call for family records, while far from what was desired, has been, perhaps, as full as could be expected. The work of our corresponding secretaries has put the association in possession of much valuable information, which, but for their efforts, would not have been available. All papers and reports were committed to Mr. William Sanford Hills, the Senior of our Board of Directors. From the first, the libraries of the New England Historic and Genealogical Society and of the city of Boston were freely used by him. At his own expense he has caused abstracts of court and land records to be made in various counties of New Hampshire, Massachusetts, and Connecticut. All accumulated material had been so far analyzed and arranged that in June, 1900, your Directors voted that he, with the President, acting as a committee, be authorized to prepare the genealogy of the family for publication. The fact that for many years he has been totally blind, required that the transcribing of his arranged material should be done by his secretaries. After his appointment as Chairman of the committee he still continued to do all the work, except the comparatively trifling amount contributed by his colleague, which consisted mainly in the revision of the work of his copyists without reference to his authorities or original documents, and the preparation of such statements as were deemed to be needed in connection with emigrant ancestors, and in certain cases to give the evidence that established genealogical facts. His associate on the committee was, however, so far familiar with his system of arrangement and methods, that the work of preparation for the printer could have been carried on if for any reason he had been compelled to relinquish it. But both members of the committee are well advanced in years, and your Board of Directors have thought it advisable, by the publication of the genealogy of the five generations of the family that can now be given to the press, to insure the association against possible loss, by fire, of its accumulations, or, by death, of the information that has been gained, that was not of record. They accordingly authorized the printing of the work which follows this report. It will be forwarded without charge to our members, and given to those who being eligible to membership shall join our ranks during the coming year. And as it is desirable that it should be examined by all interested in our genealogy, it will be forwarded to any person who shall make application for it, accompanied by the one dollar which is the annual assessment of the members of the association. It is important that all persons who may have information in relation to the birth, marriage, or death of any of the descendants of William, the emigrant of 1632, the head of the Connecticut branch, or of Joseph, the emigrant of 1638, the head of the family in Massachusetts, which is not fully set forth in this partial genealogy, or who may have knowledge of a line, that, covering one or more generations, or even a single family, which can or cannot connect with any of the lines given in the work, should communicate it to the committee at once.

It is the intention of the directors to immediately prepare copy for the printer, of the sixth and subsequent generations. The record now given to the family and the public is not as perfect as the committee desire, and one of the reasons of issuing it is that its errors and omissions may be noted, that with the best information obtainable, this publication, duly revised and corrected, be made a part of a complete genealogy. Those who favor the Committee on Publication with additions or corrections will please communicate with the president of the association.* The committee will recommend to the directors that a copy of the work now issued be given to those who shall furnish information of special value. While genealogical information will be gladly received at any time, the promise of the Board of Directors is here given that such as shall be forwarded before Jan. 1, 1903, will appear in the genealogy of the Hills family, which will be prepared for publication as speedily as possible after that date.

Respectfully submitted,

For the Board of Directors,

THOMAS HILLS, President.

NECROLOGY, 1901–2.

On the 3d of July, 1901, near the close of what for Boston had been a long heated term, William Nathaniel Hills left his home in his usual health. Business called him from the city. The day was intensely hot. His partners endeavored to persuade him to postpone his trip until it could be made with less discomfort. But prompt attention to business was his habit, and he went at once to Ipswich, a town some twenty-five miles northeast of Boston. He accomplished the object of his visit, and had arrived at the railroad station for his return, when he fell unconscious from a stroke of apoplexy and soon ceased to breathe.

He answered the call for the preliminary meeting which resulted in the formation of our association, and from the date of its incorporation to that of his death, he was one of its directors. The interest he manifested in its work at the beginning was unabated during his term of service.

Born December 25, 1834, he died unmarried, and was buried at Lowell, Mass., the place of his birth.

His line from the emigrant of 1638 was: Joseph, 1602–1688; Samuel, 1652–1732; Smith, 1706–1788; Nathaniel, 1745–1832; Paul, born Newbury, 1789, died Lowell, 1864.

Philip Knapp Hills was born in Newburyport, May 6, 1820, and died in that city August 14, 1901. That he was a valuable citizen and enjoyed the respect and good-will of the residents of the place that was his lifelong home, was indicated by the appreciative notices of the local press at the time of his death. His business career was with the banks of Newburyport. For many years he was the treasurer of its Institution for Savings. His public service for that city included four years with its School Committee, fourteen years as trustee of its Public Library, four years in its Common Council, and three years in its Board of Aldermen.

In his young manhood he was connected with its fire department, and in 1851 was elected an assistant engineer. Prominent in Odd Fellowship, he was a member of his lodge for more than half a century, and he died Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts. One of the first members of the Newbury Historical Society, he appreciated the work of our association.

Although for several years before his death he was blind, yet with cheerful courage he retained his interest in all that had concerned him, and made the most of his opportunities.

His descent from Joseph Hills, who was born in England in 1602, emigrated to New England in 1638, was of Malden for many years before 1665 when he settled in Newbury, was through the emigrant's youngest son, Samuel, who died in Newbury in 1732. From Samuel[2] the line was through Joseph[3], Joseph[4], Joshua[5], Joshua[6] and Lydia (Knapp) Hills.

GENEALOGY OF FIVE GENERATIONS

ROXBURY, MASS., 1632, AND HARTFORD, CONN., 1635.

William Hills, doubtless the first of the name to land in New England, was probably a native of the County of Essex in the mother country, the shire in which Joseph Hills was born and from which he emigrated in 1638.

Researches in England point strongly to the probability that they had a common ancestor, who was living about two hundred years before they left Old for New England. (See fourth report, 1898, page 5.)

These two emigrants are distinguished as the progenitors of nearly all of their surname who are of New England ancestry.

The first record relating to the earlier emigrant shows that he was a passenger in the ship "Lyon," William Pearce, master, which sailed from Bristol June 24, and entered the harbor of Boston on the 16th of September, 1632. The next record concerning him proves that as a resident of Roxbury he was admitted a freeman of that town on the 14th of May, 1634; that municipality became a part of Boston in 1868. "The first church in Roxbury was gathered in 1632." It is not known at what date the Rev. John Eliot, sometimes called the Apostle to the Indians, made his "records of such as adjoyned themselves unto the fellowship of this church of Christ at Roxborough." Of an emigrant of that year he says, "William Hills a manservant, he came over in the year 1632, he married Phillice Lyman daughter of Richard Liman, he removed to Hartford on Conecticott, where he lived several years, w^{h}out giving such good satisfaction to the consciences of the saints."

These are all the known records relating to the life of the emigrant in Massachusetts, where it appears he lived as a "manservant." It was common in the early days of the colonies for young men who wished to leave Old for New England to bind themselves by indentures for a term of years, the consideration being money advanced for the payment of their passage and wages to the end of the specified term of service in the new country. Similar arrangements were doubtless made by young women of that time, for among Mr. Eliot's emigrant church members several are recorded as "maide" servants.

Of the seventy male passengers of the "Mayflower" as given in Hotton's original lists, at least nine can be identified as minors. John Hook is designated "a servant boy," John Howland and nine others as "servants," while George Soule and Elias Story recorded as "two men in Winslow family," were doubtless, with their fellows, bound for service to their more prosperous companions on the famous ship.

The fact that Ann Mumford was a passenger on the "Lyon" on the voyage that terminated in September, 1632, and that she was the intended wife of the Apostle Eliot, strongly indicates that William Hills was indentured to that clergyman. That she was his affianced wife is clear, for in speaking of himself he said that those who formed his church came in a body and "settled at Rocksbrough, to whom he was fore ingaged. . . . Also his wife came along wth the rest of his friends the same time & soone after theire coming, they were married, viz. in the 8th month 1632." The indication becomes almost conclusive evidence when the record shows "Thomas Hills, a manservant, he came in the yeare 1633, —he lived among us in good esteeme & godly, & dyed about the 11th or 12th month, 1634, and left a good savor behind him, he was a very faithful & prudent servant & a good christian, he dyed in Mr. Elliots family." The records seem to tell this plain story. William and Thomas were brothers. They came from Essex in England, the home of Eliot, doubtless that of his wife and of the friends "to whom he was fore ingaged." The harsh criticism of William by his master and pastor followed some disagreement as to service or religious belief. Thomas died in 1634. William doubtless left Roxbury for Hartford with his father-in-law, Richard Lyman, October 15, 1635. With a farm of forty-eight and one-half acres, not including the "nine accres of salt marsh" or the "fifty five accres and a quarter" in another part of the town and "thirty and nine accres" in Dedham, and two other lots that Mr. Eliot had bought, aggregating more than twenty acres, that worthy saint doubtless regretted the loss of the services of the two brothers. It was not an age of tolerance, and it is not surprising, while he praised the faithful servant who died in his family that he could not think of the other as a good Christian.

No record of the first marriage of William Hills has been found other than that already quoted and one other given by Mr. Eliot in his record of church membership: "Phillis Lyman the daughter of Richard Lyman, she came to the land w^h^ her fath^r^ añ^o^ 1631. God wrought upon her heart in this land; she grew deaf, w^h^ disease increasing was a great affliction to her. She was married to William Hills & lived w^h^ him at Hartford on Conecticot." The date when this marriage terminated by the death of the wife is not known. She was living when the will of her father, the first on record at Hartford, was probated in 1640. By it "Fillis, the wife of William Hills," received a legacy. Evidence recently discovered shows that she probably died before 1648.

It has been generally accepted as a fact that Mary, the widow of the emigrant of 1632, was his second wife, but it appears by probate records that she had two predecessors. The distribution of the estate of Thomas Bunce shows that one parcel of real estate, about four acres on the east side of the great river, had been bought by the decedent of William Hills, and that the lot was "formally Richard Risley's, and came to said Hills by right of his wife relict of said Risley, as appears by a writting under said Hills hand, dated Feb. 26, 1680," witnessed by James Steele and Thomas Watts. The inventory of the Risley estate was filed October 17, 1648. The court records show there were three children, the eldest less than eight years old, "William Hill bringing them up and giving security to the court" for their several portions of their father's estate.

The wife who probably survived William Hills was, before her last marriage, Mary, the widow of John Steele, who died in Farmington, Conn., some time after the date of his will in 1664 and the filing of the inventory of his estate in June, 1665. The Warner genealogy states that Mary, daughter of Andrew Warner, of Hadley, Mass., married John Steele, January 22, 1646, and that her second husband was William Hill, of Hartford. When the widow Steele again became a wife is unknown. It was before the 25th of January, 1669, for at that date the Steele estate was settled, and in the instrument of distribution she is referred to as Mary Hill, and William Hill, her husband, "having taken upon himself to administer the estate, is to make good to the children as they come of age." That her second husband was William Hills, of Hartford, and that she was living some twelve years later, appear from the will of the emigrant of 1632, which is dated February 21, 1681, in which he refers to the revenues of the lands in Farmington as those he has "right unto by and in right of my wife," and provides that they be "demanded and received" for her.

In the historical catalogue of the First Church of Hartford, the name of William Hills appears among those of the original and early members in connection with the words "dismissed July, 1683, moved to Hadley." William Hills bought a large tract of land at Hoccanum (East Hartford), and resided there for many years. From it he deeded to sons and sons-in-law. That he had not moved to that place in October, 1669, is clear, for the Colonial records show that he, with his sons William and John, were "freemen residing on the south side of Hartford" at that date. It is a matter of some doubt if his death, in 1683, occurred in East Hartford or in Hadley, the early home of the wife of his old age.

Concerning the genealogy of the early settlers of Connecticut, it should always be borne in mind that the town and church vital records are in a very vague, incomplete, and unsatisfactory condition. Consequently, in tracing the genealogy of the descendants of William Hills, of Hartford, no records can be found of the births and marriages of many of the first four generations of those who could claim him as an ancestor.

Fortunately the records of wills and administrations in the County Probate Courts furnish the names of most of the children of the decedents of those early days who were living at the death of their progenitor, and also those of grandchildren interested in the estates that passed through the courts. These, together with the land records in the Registries of Deeds, afford the only knowledge now obtainable of very many of the descendants of William Hills.

John Hills[2] (William[1]) was doubtless born in Hartford before 1648. The Colonial records show that he was a freeman of that place in October, 1669. He married at Saybrook, Conn., April 14, 1670, Jane Bushnell.

An inspection of published works suggests that there were two John Bushnells living in those early days, one the grandson of John Bushnell, of Boston, in England, whose three sons, Francis, William, and Richard, emigrated to Connecticut, the other who certainly died in Boston, in New England, where his estate was probated in 1667. The John Hills who lived in Boston, where by the report of the Record Commissioners he had children born to him from 1651 to 1666, had a daughter Jane who was born December 18, 1662, and consequently was only eight years old at the date of the marriage of Jane Bushnell in Saybrook. But for the purposes of this work the important questions are, was the young husband John Hill or John Hills; and, if he rightly carried s as the final letter of his surname, whose son was he?

If John Hills was the son of William Hills, of Hartford, both questions are answered. There are four records referring directly to John, the son of the emigrant of 1632. The first, that shows that he was of age in 1669, has already been mentioned. The second is found in a deed dated March 14, 1677, conveying land in East Hartford from father to son. The third is where he appears in his father's will which was dated February 21, 1681. The fourth is found in the records of the Probate Court which gives his nuncupative or verbal will that recites, "that when our brother John Hill lay sick of the sickness whereof he died, we did hear him say, that when his debts were paid, his wife shall enjoy all his estate during her mortal life, and what was left after her decease, shall be divided equally between his two daughters and being of good understanding and memory when he so declared." Sworn to by Jonathan Hill aged twenty-eight and Dorothy Hill aged twenty-five, dated September 1, 1692.

It will be noticed that the scribe who drew this instrument and the recorder who attested the oaths of the husband and wife wrote the names of three different persons as "Hill," when they were known in the community in which they lived as "Hills."

In following the early Colonial records relating to William Hills and his descendants, in fact, to any of the surname wherever recorded, the family name is as often spelled Hill as Hills. It is well known that a William Hill who was made a freeman in Dorchester, November 5, 1633, left that place, which adjoined Roxbury, about the time that William Hills left the last-named town, and that both settled in Connecticut, one at Hartford, the other at Windsor, the distance between their new homes being but six and a half miles. The descendants of neither of these neighbors were numerous in the seventeenth century, but the fact that a John Hill, of Guilford, married the widow Catherine Chalker, of Saybrook, September 3, 1673, raises the question if the bridegroom of that day was not the same person who, in April, 1670, married Jane Bushnell. This question is easily answered. The history of Guilford shows that the John Hill who married the widow was of that town as early as 1654, that he had a wife Frances who, before she died, was the mother of five children, and that her death in that town did not occur until May, 1673. In 1670 there was but one John Hills in the new settlements of Connecticut who was of age to be married; that one was the son of William, of Hartford.

Following the marriage in Saybrook the records of that town show that a son, Samuel, was born May 29, 1671. If that infant's family name was Hills, he was a grandson of William, the emigrant of 1632.

In the report of the Hills Family Association for 1901, a somewhat lengthy statement of facts was given that almost conclusively proves that a Samuel Hills, who was unquestionably born in 1671, was the person whose birth was of record in Saybrook as of that date; that his surname and that of his son Samuel was Hills, was proved beyond a doubt, and their descendants of modern times are so designated.

Every fact stated, and every deduction they justified, indicated that the Samuel Hills, who, in November, 1694, married Phebe Leonard of Duxbury in Massachusetts, and thereafter resided in that town for more than thirty years, and until he removed to Lebanon in Connecticut, was the son of John and Jane Hills, who were married in Saybrook, in 1670. The statement invited criticism, and in terms asked for information. It has been suggested that the name Samuel was not common in the family of the emigrant. It is true that neither of his five sons was so named, but two of his grandsons, children of his sons Joseph and Benjamin, were called Samuel. It was also suggested that if the infant born in Saybrook in 1671 had been the grandson of William, he would have been mentioned in his father's will, which he declared when he "lay sick of the sickness whereof he died." But it is a fact that in 1692, William Hills, like his brother John, left his property by a nuncupative will, and it is also true that he left it to his daughters, Phillis, Mary, and Hannah, omitting to mention his other living children, Esther, Ebenezer, John, and Joseph; and still another brother, Benjamin, by a will dated February 4, 1726, mentions only his children Benjamin, Susannah, Abigail, and Samuel. How many he omitted is not known; he certainly left out John, who, when his brother Benjamin died in 1733, went upon the bond which the widow and her brother-in-law Samuel were required to give as executors. In this bond both John and Samuel are called brothers of the decedent.

It should be remembered that in those early days nearly all the property of the country was in land, and that it was the custom to give to some of the children of a family in their father's lifetime, their share of his estate. The argument that the evidence presented proved that Samuel Hills, who was born in 1671, was of the Hartford branch, would have been convincing, but for the fact that when he returned to Connecticut, after his long sojourn in Duxbury, he did not go to the vicinity of his own and his father's birthplace, or to Saybrook, where relatives were resident, but settled in the newly-peopled town of Lebanon. The absence of a motive for such a movement, and the breaking of home ties to live as it seemed among strangers, made the change appear somewhat inconsistent with the theory that the facts seemed to justify, and on which the argument was based. With new evidence, a reasonable motive has been found to have existed. Lebanon was incorporated in 1700. By Bushnell genealogy it appears that Francis Bushnell had sons, John and Richard; that Richard married Mary Marvin, and had Richard, who was of Norwich, and who married Elizabeth, daughter of Deacon Thomas Adgate. Hines' "Early Lebanon" says that Richard Bushnell, the younger, was granted land in that town on the second of June, 1699, by a proprietors' vote. "Whereas he (Richard Bushnell) had been at considerable charge with the four proprietors of Lebanon in the setting up of said place they grant him one hundred acres of land above Edward Culver's house," and the author or a Mr. Morgan of Hartford, who furnished the historical notes for the work, adds that the land was "not a home lot. He was half brother of Thomas Adgate, an original proprietor." Richard Bushnell, senior, having died in 1657, his widow in 1660 married Deacon Thomas Adgate and became the mother of the Thomas who was one of the original proprietors of Lebanon.

Richard Bushnell, junior, lived and died in Norwich, but his half brother, Thomas Adgate, had large interests in Lebanon, which adjoined Norwich and probably made the new town his home; so there were doubtless relatives on his mother's side and perhaps land in Lebanon or its vicinity for Samuel Hills. But this is not all. Phillis Lyman, wife of William Hills, the emigrant, had a brother, Richard, who married Hepzibah Ford, and removed to Northampton, Mass., about 1655, where he died June 3, 1662. His son Richard, in 1675, married Elizabeth Coles, and in 1696 removed to Lebanon, in Connecticut, "where some of his descendants have continued to reside until the present time," so there were relatives on his father's side living in Lebanon, when Samuel Hills removed to that town about 1726. A motive for the change of residence from Duxbury to Lebanon has been found, and there can be no reasonable doubt of the fact that Samuel Hills, who was born in Saybrook, May 29, 1671 was, the son of John and the grandson of William Hills.

OF THE

DESCENDANTS OF JOSEPH HILLS, 1602–1688,

MALDEN AND NEWBURY, MASS.

Joseph Hills[1]. As stated in detail upon pages three and four of the third report of the directors of the Hills Family Association, it has been found that Joseph Hills was born in the parish of Great Burstead, Billericay, Essex, England. The record of his baptism reads, "1602, March, Joseph Hilles the sonne of George, was baptized the third day." Neither the birthplace nor parentage of George Hills has yet been discovered. The earliest known record in relation to him is that of his marriage, — "George Hilles, linen draper, and Mary Symonds, of Billericay, County Essex, widow of William Symonds, late of same, tanner, general license of the Bishop of London, 13 Oct. 1596." An unfortunate break in the register of Great Burstead, all records between 1579 and 1596 being missing, will probably prevent the discovery of the maiden name and parentage of the wife of George Hills.

Joseph Hills, as shown by his signatures, used but four letters, in the form now commonly used, in his surname. In the baptismal record of his brothers and sisters born before 1607, like that which relates to himself, the name has two vowels. The change to Hills in the entry of the christening of his sister Rebecca in February, 1608, and of two younger children, doubtless followed the advent of a new Vicar into the living of Great Burstead. In that parish, on the twenty-second day of July, 1624, Joseph Hills was married to Rose Clarke whose birth record has not yet been found. There his elder children were born. Not later than March, 1632, the family removed to Maldon, also of Essex, which was the birthplace of sons John and "Steven" and of daughter Sarah.

In 1638 he was the "undertaker" of the voyage of the ship "Susan and Ellen," which arrived July 17 of that year, and landed her passengers and cargo at Boston, in New England. His first abiding place was where the settlement of Charlestown was located by Governor Winthrop, between the Charles and Mystic rivers, and which, about the middle of the nineteenth century, became a city. In 1874 it was annexed to Boston. The family dwelling was "near the market place," but in a few years he was a resident of that part of the town north of the Mystic river, establishing his home at "Mystic Side" on a farm of considerable size. He soon became active in public affairs, was selectman of the town in 1644, and in 1646 represented it in the General Court, as the colonial assembly was then named, and as its legislature is still known under the Constitution of the State. Re-elected in 1647, he was chosen speaker of its House of Deputies. When "Mystic Side" was set off as a separate town, it was doubtless named by him for the place where he last dwelt in Old England. This part of ancient Charlestown has long since outgrown the town form of government, and with more than thirty thousand inhabitants, is known as the city of Malden.

While a resident of Mystic Side and Malden he was captain of its train-band. At his death he willed his "buffe coate" to his son Samuel, and his "backsword" to Henry Lunt, his stepson. He was Malden's first deputy, and the town had no other representative until after 1664. In 1665 Malden was not represented, Mr. Hills having removed to Newbury, on the Merrimac River. In 1666 his son-in-law, John Waite, was his successor, and "for an unbroken series of nineteen years he filled this office," being Speaker of the House of Deputies in 1684 and nominated as a magistrate in 1683.

In 1645 Joseph Hills was the first named on a committee "to set out lots to the settlers of Nashaway plantacŏn." In 1648 he was first of a committee of four to change the location of the highway "between Winnesemet and Redding." In 1650 he was second of a committee, of which the governor was chairman, appointed to draw up instructions for the Massachusetts delegates to a gathering where "the commissioners of all the colonies shall meete." In 1653 he was one of a committee of six to consider the question, "if the Vnited Collonjes haue power by the articles of Agreement . . . to ingage the Collonjes" "in warre." In 1654, with Captains Hawthorne and Johnson, and the treasurer of the Colony, he was appointed to frame a reply to the home government, which had demanded an explanation of certain acts. Three times, in 1650, 1653, and 1661, he was of committees to audit the treasury accounts, but his greatest public service was that of the leading member of the committee that in 1648 reported to the General Court the first codification of the laws of the Colony. The story of his part of the work is well told by one of his descendants, Mr. D. P. Corey, in his history of Malden, published in that city, in 1899. That he was the actual compiler of the laws, that he prepared the copy for the press and supervised their printing, is clearly proved. The colony recognized the great value of his work, not only by a money payment but by a grant of five hundred acres of land on the Nashua River, now a part of Southern New Hampshire, and the remission of his taxes in his old age. But new laws were from time to time enacted and old ones changed, and "the Courte finding by experience the great benefitt that doth redound to the country by putting of the lawes into printe," in 1649–50, 1653, 1654 and 1661 appointed committees as stated in the vote of the last-named year "to peruse such lawes as are vnprinted & vnrepealed & comitt them to the presse."

For this work Joseph Hills had such prominence that his appointments to these committees were three times as numerous as those of any of his colleagues except Governor Bellingham who, notwithstanding his official position, was outranked by his less distinguished associate in the number of times he was designated for such service.

Rose Clark, the first wife of Joseph Hills, died at Malden, March 24, 1650, and he married, June 24, 1651, Hannah (Smith), widow of Edward Mellows, of Charlestown, who died about 1655. In January, 1656, he married Helen, or Elline, or Eleanor, daughter of Hugh Atkinson, of Kendall, Westmoreland, England, who died at some date between January 8, 1661, and November 10, 1662. In connection with this marriage a noteworthy incident occurred. In the early days of the Colony all marriages were solemnized by magistrates, the clergy having no part in the ceremony. In 1641 Governor Bellingham, as magistrate, married himself to Penelope Pelham, and when called on to come down from the bench and plead to a complaint against him for the act, refused to do so. Joseph Hills was a magistrate "for the trial of small causes," and followed the Governor's example in his marriage of January, 1656, but, unlike the Governor, did not escape public censure. The records of the Court for Middlesex County show that, April 1, 1656, "Mr. Joseph Hills of Mauldon being presented by the Grand Jury for marrying of himself, contrary to the law of this Collony page 38 in ye old Booke. Hee freely acknowledged his offence therein, and his misvnderstanding the grounds whereon he went w^ch^ he now confesseth to be vnwarrantable, And was admonished by the Court." March 8, 1665, he married, at Newbury, Ann, the widow of Henry Lunt, of that town, and until his death made her dwelling his home.

His petition to the General Court, dated May 24, 1682, recites that "in the latter part of his pilgrimage" he was "totally" bereaved of "the sight of his eyes for more than 4 years now past." He died at Newbury, February 5, 1688.

15. Deborah[2] (Joseph[1]), b. Malden, Mass., March —, 1657; d. Malden, October 1, 1662. The fact that Joseph Hills, by a deed, dated October 5, 1676, recorded, Middlesex, vol. 9, page 158, conveyed an estate in trust for "Deborah, the wife of John Pemberton of Malden," probably led the compiler of the genealogy of that family to state that the wife referred to was the daughter of the grantor. The record of his children makes it safe to assume that the Deborah who was born in 1657 was the first of her name in his family. If another Deborah was born to him after her death in 1662, she would not have been of marriageable age in 1676.

16. Abigail[2] (Joseph[1]), b. Malden, Mass., October 6, 1658; d. Malden, October 9, 1662.

17. Joseph[3] (Joseph[2], Joseph[1]), b. Malden, Mass., October 19, 1655; d. Malden, while young.

In the instrument of conveyance, "Samuel Palmer and Mary his wife" describe themselves as of Rowley, in the county of Essex.

28. Sarah[3] (Gershom[2], Joseph[1]), b. Malden, Mass., ; d. Woodstock, Conn., April 7, 1735. Married, Swansea, Mass., July 17, 1700, John Chaffee[3] (brother of Joseph[3], son of Joseph[2] and Ann Martin, of Swansea, formerly of Hull, Mass., son of Thomas[1], of Swansea, formerly of Hingham, Mass., b. Swansea, February 6, 1677, d. prior to 1765. He married, 2d, Jemima Chadwick of Falmouth, Mass., October 16, 1712, and had seven children.

The only child of Abigail (Hills) and Joseph Chaffee, of whom any record was found, was:

i. Benjamin, b. Swansea, Sept. 11, 1710; d.

30. A daughter[3] (Gershom[2], Joseph[1]). There can be no doubt that there was a daughter of Gershom and Elizabeth (Chadwick) Hills, whose given name is unknown. This appears by the deed that conveyed the homestead estate in Malden, where she was born, to Ebenezer Hills in 1721. By that instrument, "John Chaffee and Sarah his wife, Joseph Chaffee of Barrington and John Tomson of Rehoboth," part with their respective interests in the property. Rehoboth and Swansea are adjoining towns, and "John Tomson" doubtless joined in the conveyance for the same reason as his brother-in-law of Barrington, that was, as a husband of a daughter of Gershom Hills, who had died before the sale of the Malden estate.

31. Benjamin[3] (Gershom[2], Joseph[1]), b. Malden, Mass., — , 1680; d. Lynn, Mass., June 20, 1768. Married Mary, daughter of ——.

It is certain that Sarah, Abigail, and that other daughter of Gershom Hills, who was the wife of John Tomson, were married and settled in Swansea or Rehoboth in or about the first decade of the eighteenth century. It is equally certain that their cousin Samuel, the son of Samuel[2], their father's half brother, was of Swansea in 1708, and in Rehoboth as early as the 11th of June, 1711, the date of the birth of his daughter Margaret in that town. The facts that prove the removal of Samuel[3] from Newbury to Southern Massachusetts are stated on pages 4 to 9 inclusive of the sixth report (June, 1900) of the Hills Family Association.

Children of Samuel and Ann (——) Hills were:

60. Margaret, b. Rehoboth, June 11, 1711; d. Rehoboth, Sept. 30, 1726.

Married, 2d, Abigail ——, daughter of ——, b. , d. . Married, 3d, Newbury, November 11, 1736, Dorcus Thurston, daughter of ——, b. , d.

Samuel[2] Hills, by his will, which was dated August 5, 1732, gave his property to his wife and seven of the nine sons who survived him. His sons Henry and James are not mentioned in that instrument. The reason for their omission is found in deeds dated August 22, 1721. In that of which Henry is the grantee his father recites "the natural love and affection which I have and do bear unto my well beloved son Henry Hills . . . and in full of his portion of my estate." As the consideration for the conveyance to him of "one-half part of all . . . lands and meadow . . . in the town of Dunstable, in the county of Middlesex . . . on the easterly side of the Merrimack River . . . which land and meadow was granted to my honored father, Mr. Joseph Hills, late of Newbury, deceased, and conveyed to me by the last will and testament of the said Joseph Hills." On the 16th of October, 1721, Henry Hills bought of John Usher fifteen acres of land in Dunstable, his grantor in the deed that conveyed it describing him as that of place; and on the twentieth of that month he sold his Essex County land in Massachusetts to his brother John. In the records of Newbury, at the date of his third marriage, he is described as of Nottingham. When he died, in 1757, he was of Hudson, in which town, after the various changes of its name, Dunstable, or that part of it where he resided, was merged. There can be little doubt he removed to New Hampshire immediately on receiving his father's deed, and had his home on the estate he took for his inheritance.

James Hills was not mentioned in his father's will for reasons that are stated in connection with the record of his elder brother Henry. For the same consideration for which Samuel Hills gave to the son who was born in 1688 one half of the New Hampshire estate he had inherited from the grandfather of the two young men, he gave to his "well-beloved son James Hills," the other half of his Dunstable property.

On the 11th of January, 1723, reciting in his deed that he was a resident of the new settlement, the younger son sold the land, he had received, as a lot of sixty acres to Samuel Whiting, of Dunstable. As he was unmarried he probably then resided with his brother Henry. After his marriage he lived in Newbury until about 1738, when he returned to New Hampshire. He probably reacquired the property he sold to Whiting, as a conveyance by his brother Nathaniel, dated October 18, 1739, bounds his grantee on land of "James Hills 132 pole," which was one of the bounds by which Samuel Whiting took his title in 1723.
